Eee Numb. 1326.

The Daily Courant.

Monday, July 15. 1706.

From the Paris Gazette, dated July 17.

Madrid, June 24.

THE Portugueſe ſtrengthen'd by Engliſh and Dutch Troops, are advanc'd without Oppoſition to the Paſſage of Guadarrama. The Duke of Berwick not having Foot to diſpute the Paſſages, the King thought fit to ſend the Queen to Alcala and Guadalazara, whither all the Councils are gone, no Perſon of Note remaining here, thoſe who cou'd not immediately follow the Court being gone to their Seats in the Country, to get their Equipages made. The 21ſt the King went from hence, to go with the Troops that are drawing together from all Parts of Caſtile, and a Detachment of thoſe of the Count de las Torres, to joyn the Horſe commanded by the Duke of Berwick, which are in very good Condition, and we are aſſur'd are Superior to thoſe of the Enemy. The Communities of this City gave on this Occaſion all poſſible Marks of Loyalty and Zeal for his Catholick Majeſty, offering to take Arms and to ſacrifice all for the Defence of their Religion and Country. The King who expects in a ſhort Time to be join'd by the Troops that are ſuppos'd to be advanc'd on this ſide of Pampelona, with which may be form'd an Army conſiderable enough to oppoſe the Progreſs of the Enemy, would not expoſe his Subjects to have their Houſes plunder'd and burnt, and contented himſelf with their good Will.

From the Antwerp Courant, dated July 20.

Pempelona, July 1. On Monday laſt the Queen of Spain arriv'd here. King Philip is daily expected likewiſe from Burgos, and the Commiſſaries of Proviſions having begun to erect great Magazines of Proviſions here, 'tis believ'd the Duke of Berwick with his Army will come hither likewiſe. The foremoſt of the Troops that are coming from Rouſſillon are arriv'd on this ſide of Bayone, and are expected here. When all are come hither, we ſhall be able to form an Army of 19 or 20000 Men all regular Troops, beſides a great Number of Militia. We have Advice here, that the 26th of laſt Month the Earl of Galway entred Madrid, and made the Duke of Medina Celi Governour of that City. The Catalonians to the Number of 7 or 8000 Men have laid Siege to Jaca; That Town is but indifferently fortified, but the Caſtle is very ſtrong; if the Catalonians take it, the Communication of Navarre with Arragon is cut off.

From the Leiden Courant, dated July 21.

Paris, July 16. Advices from Naples ſay the Viceroy had forbid the Burghers Entrance into any of the Caſtles of that City. Prince Eugene had not paſs'd the Adige the 4th Inſtant, but we expect to hear ſhortly that he has attempted to force a Paſſage over it. The Duke of Orleans arriv'd the 8th of this Month in the Camp before Turin, where he was receiv'd with great Honour. The Siege of that City is puſh'd on vigorouſly, but will ſtill coſt a great deal of Blood, Money, and Time, for the Attack of the Citadel is to be chang'd, and carried on againſt the Hornwork. The Queen of Spain arriv'd at Pampelona the 28th paſt, with a Guard of 600 Horſe; the Marquis de Legal is likewiſe arriv'd there with moſt of the Troops from Rouſſillon; but they are ſo extremely fatigu'd, that it will be ſome Time before they can be put upon Service; King Philp was daily expected there. The 9th of June, the States of Arragon ſwore Allegiance to King Charles III, as to their lawful King: Alicant has alſo ſubmitted to him, and the Duke of Medina Celi being made Governour of Madrid for King Charles III has caus'd that King to be proclaim'd in that City.

From the Paris Letter, dated July 16.

Paris, July 16. M. de Legal, Lieutenant General, who led the Army from Catalonia to Navarre, writes from Pampelona the 3d Inſtant, that he was arriv'd there with the greateſt part of the Troops in a pretty good Condition, notwithſtanding ſo long a March, that he expected the reſt in order to march in a Body to joyn the King of Spain, who was but 19 Leagues from Madrid; and that his Majeſty had Advice the Portugueſe were wholly taken up in ſeeking Quarters of Refreſhment where they might be ſecure. The Beſiegers of Turin carry on that Siege with all poſſible Vigour, the more becauſe the Beſieged make a vigorous Reſiſtance. 'Tis talk'd the Attack will be chang'd, and that inſtead of carrying it on againſt the Citadel, it will be turn'd againſt the Hornwork on the Right of the City. The Duke de la Feuillade having [illegible]iv'd the Submiſſion of the Mondovians, who br[illegible]m their Keys to the Foot of the Mountain, en[illegible] Mondovi with 30 Cuiraſſiers, and fou[illegible] Prince and Princeſs of Carignan, who deſir'd Leave to ſtay there; but he thought fit to cauſe them to be conducted to Raconis under a good Guard. Some Letters ſay the Marquis de St. Thomas the Duke of Savoy's chief Miniſter, was there likewiſe, but others aſſure us he is with his Royal Highneſs. The Count d'Eſtain continues the Attack of the Caſtel of Aſti.

From the Amſterdam Gazette, dated July 20.

Letters from Milan of the 6th of this Month, ſay the Gariſon of Turin had made 2 Sallies, in which they kill'd or took Priſoners above 2000 Men, nail'd the Cannon of 2 Batteries, and carried 7 pieces of Cannon into the Place.

From the Antwerp Courant, dated July 20.

From Prince Eugene of Savoy's Camp at San Martino, July 3. The laſt of the Saxe-Gothan and Palatin Troops joyn'd us Yeſterday. We have provided a great Number of Pontons, and to day expect ſome large Timber and Planks; in 3 or 4 Days we ſhall certainly attempt to paſs the Adige in ſeveral Places, which will doubtleſs coſt much Blood, the Duke of Vendome's Troops being ſo poſted along the River, that 'tis judg'd impoſſible to ſurprize them. We had Hopes the Venetian Governours of Verona and Legnago would have let us paſs through their Towns, and ſo we ſhould have got over the Adige without any Danger: But thoſe Governours have given us to underſtand, that they have no Orders from the Senate for it, and that the Republick will not infringe the Neutrality.

From the Antwerp Courant, dated July 20.

Mantua, July 4. The Germans have made no Attempt tempt yet. A great Rain that fell to Night, has ſwoll'd the Rivers very much, which is not a little to our Advantage. The Duke of Vendome has poſted Men on all the Eminencies along the Adige, who can eaſily ſee into the Camp of the Enemy, ſo that Prince Eugene cannot make the leaſt Motion but we ſhall have Notice of it by Signals. On Wedneſday laſt the Duke of Vendome receiv'd an Expreſs from the Court of France, with Advice that the King had nominated him to command the Army in the Netherlands, and the Duke of Orleans to relieve him. The French General Officers receiv'd this News with Diſſatisfaction, being apprehenſive that the new General not knowing the Situation of the Country, will give Prince Eugene an Advantage.

Milan, July 6. By an Expreſs from the Army under the Duke of Vendome we are inform'd, thus the Germans under Prince Eugene made ſeveral Motions the 4th Inſtant, as if they deſign'd to attempt to paſs the Adige between Verona and Legnago; but had not actually made any ſuch attempt. The French are in Arms Night and Day, to obſerve the Germans.

From the Amſterdam Conrant, dated July 20.

Genoa, July 6. The 7th Inſtant, a Courier that paſs'd through this Place in his Way from Lombardy to Paris, reported, that Prince Eugene of Savoy is come over the Adige.

From the Paris Gazette, dated July 17.

Dunkirk, July 9. We have receiv'd an Account of the taking of Oſtend, which the Count de la Mothe was oblig'd to ſurrender, becauſe beſides the Diviſion that was in the Town, he wanted Bullets, Arms, Powder, and Proviſions, which we had not Time to throw in. The Enemy who loſt a great many Men before it began to inveſt it the 13th of laſt Month, and the Trenches were open'd the Night between the 22d and 23d. The Marſhal de Vauban has finiſh'd the Lines for fortifying a Camp near this Place. They begin at the Canal of Bourbourg, paſs by Fort Louis, and end at the Downes or Sand-Hills, and are of an extraordinary Breadth and Heighth. So that this Town is now intirely ſecur'd. The 6th he went to form a Camp near Newport, to cover that Place, and has caus'd Batteries to be rais'd on the Downes to hinder the Enemy from Approaching it.

From the Camp at Helchin, July 19. The 16th the Prince Royal of Pruſſia came to the Army, being met at ſome Diſtance from the Camp by the Duke of Marlborough, and a great many of the general Officers: His Royal Highneſs Din'd with his Grace that Day, and the next morning my Lord Duke order'd the Firſt Line of the Army to draw out, for his Royal Highneſs to review it; and he was very well pleas'd with the good Condition the Troops appear'd in. The 17th the Pruſſians and Hanoverians march'd from Aloſt, and this Day arriv'd in the Rear of our Army; where they will continue till further Order. Monſieur d'Auverquerpue came likewiſe the 17th with the Troops under his Command to St. Eloy Vive, within 2 Leagues of our Right; where my Lord Duke went this morning to make him a Viſit, and return'd again this Evening to the Camp. His Grace at the ſame time order'd the Lys to be viſited, and 'twas found that the Enemy had made Sluyces above, whereby they had ſo drain'd the Water that in many Places there is not above one Foot left, whereas there ought to be Five Foot to bring up our Boats with the Artillery; ſo that General Saliſch will be order'd to morrow with a ſtrong Detachment, to break all the Sluyces between Liſle, Armentiers, and Menin; in hopes that may have a good Effect. Yeſterday 35 Huſſars with a Lieutenant and a Quarter-maſter came over to us from the Enemy, with their Horſes and Arms. The ſame Day one of our Parties engag'd Four ſeveral Parties of the Enemy, kill'd a great many of them and brought in Forty Priſoners.

Hague, July 20. The 17th at Night the King of Pruſſia arriv'd at Honſlaerdyke, and is expected here to morrow. The 18th his Majeſty entertain'd at Dinner My Lord Halliſax, the Marquis of Hartford, the Marquis of Monthermer, and the Earl of Dorſet. That Night My Lord Halliſax went to Rotterdam, to go from thence to Ghent, and ſo to the Army: 'Tis believ'd he will not come back to Holland, but embark at Oſtend for England. Letters from France, ſay the Miquelets have taken a ſtrong Caſtle that cuts of the Communication of Navarre with Arragon.
